Remember that time when you had the most exciting chat by the side of the road, eating chewy meatballs (read: bakso) with hot salty soup and fell from that flimsy plastic stool when you laugh just a bit too hard?

Nostalgic feelings aside, why don't you sip the hot salty soup and chew those meatballs in the comfort of your air-conditioned home, and stylishly sit at a sophisticated stool while your tongue got numb from all the MSG.

MAIN

CONCEPT

Ba is a reinterpretation of “bakso stools” typically used in Indonesian street food vendors, particularly meat ball stalls. These stools are commonly picked up as flimsy plastic, lasting only a short period of time. While staying relevant to its original form, ba models this favoured stool in solid wood and adds additional features for extra functionality.
